Good Manners at Home.

The presence of good minners nowhere more needed or more effective than in the household, and perhaps nowhere more rare. Whenever the familiarity exists there is a tendency to loosen the cheek upon sellish conduct which the presence of strangers involuntarily produces. The Sionx City Journal published the following interview with Eli Perkins (Melville D. Landon), the well know lecturer and humorist: "On the Ounha train for Sionx City to-day was Congressman Mills, of Texas. With him was his bright little boy, who had been in Minneapolis school. The little fellow was bright as his fither, but did not seem to know anything about the fallacies of politics. He was ready to maswer all questions, and his astuteness astonished even his father. " I usked Mr. Mills if I taight nek the little fellow some questions and note his schoolboy answers. " 'Certainly,' said the genial Congressman, "go ahead and you will find Charlie bright enough to answer anything."

"'And you won't interrupt us? I asked.

" 'Certainly not.' " 'Now Charlie,' I said, eading the bright little fellow up to me, I'm going to ask you some hard questions, harder than cube root, and -Shukepeare. I don't believe a tittle fellow 12 years old like you can answer."

" 'Why, It would make our nation whil rieb, wouldn't it?' said Charlie. " 'Yes my boy,' I said, 'it would ' "Again, Charlie, suppose our country had kept $100,000,000 of gold and sold over $690,000,000 worth of cotton and wheat and tobacco for er of the Mills bill. " 'But, Charlie if we put a protective tariff of about 50 per ceut, against these European things made by cheap labor, how would that effect our laboring men? "Why, we could pay them more wages, of course; that's plain as day.'

" Then, Charlie, what di we gain by putting a protective tarill' against Europenn manufactures?" "'Why, then, we have to make them here. We pay big wages and keep our mouey at home; nny fool can see that, can't they pa?" " 'Here, Charlie, said Congressman Mills, taken offhis glasses and wiping them with American handana, let me ask you a question now,

" Don't you sec all the pauper laborers of Europe coming over here, Charlie? Now, my son, how can we keep them back?' "Why, papa, we could take off this Tarill, couldn't we, nad then our wages would go down as low as theirs, our factories would stop and their factories would start up, and they wouldn't want to come here, would they? They wouldn't want to coare here papa if our wages wern't higher than theirs, would they?'

Thousands of manufaturers are making sugar, silk, chicory haen, tin, glass and pottery. They are moving over from Europe, and soon our manufacturers will eat up all our surplus wheat, then what, Charlie;'

" 'Well, I gues- they'll have to pay a good price for it in gold, too, by ginger! and that will make the farmer rich, won't it? And so we will have lots of gold and lots of mnnufacturers, everybody will be prosperous, wages will be high, competition will make manufactured articles cheap; and we will be a great comitry, won't we?"

"You bet we will, Charlie!' I said, and when you get to be a man, if you are as sound on these questions as you are now, we will make you speaker of the House.'

[Exchange.] It has been stated that good roads indicate a high stage of civililization, but if the claim is correct there is much for farmers yet to do before they can reach the limit, for the greatest neglect has been given the roads. Though a road is public property, and devoted to the use of each and all, yet no one has sufficient private interest therein to permit him to cease farm operation in order to look after the roads. It is only when the roads become impassable that their condition is noticed and regretted.

Experiments have recently been made at several points which show that a bad road in winter will cost the former a sum much greater than his taxes on the farm, in some instances, as he must not only sacrifice time. wear of vehicle, and lessen the weight of his load, but must use two horses to do the work of one. The draft on n gravel rond, according to Professor Sanborn, compared with even a good dry dirt road, showed a difference of over 4.000 nounds load for the same force,, or over 119 per cent more of net land could be carried on the gravel road than on the dirt road, while the draft was lessened more than ouehalf. If this difference between a good gravel road nad n good dry road is so great, how great should be against the whent, corn, rye, oats, the difference between a good road barley and potatoes raised in Canada and one of mud, on which the wag- Sold by Z. Hunting Muskeals at Night. There are three ways by which muskrats are eaptured-by shooting, by trapping and by spearing. A few may be secured at night by creeping as noiselessly as possible along the creek edges and watching for them to erawi up on the bank to feed. In this they are very dainty. Having secured a favorite root, they approach eauthously the water's edge and dlp it in and rub off the mud, dip it in again and again until it is perfectly clean and snited to their tasto, when it is eaten with evident relish, provided the sportsman is sufficiently interested in the process to

A boat, however, is usually used, as the rats can be more easily and quietly approached on the water. In this case two persons occupy the same boat, the sportsman requiring a pusher. As this sport can only be engaged in at night, the sky must be comparatively clear, in order that the hunter may have the advantage of the moonlight, or, better still, bright startight. A headlight, with reflector, is, however, sometimes used on the bow of the bont, and this arrangement is frequently quite sue cessful during the durker nights to one sufficiently well acquainted with the hunting grounds.—Baltimore Sun.
